

Where do I find out more?

- You can ask the person who gave you this information;
- You can look on the internet
<http://www.england.nhs.uk/commissioning/ipc/>;
- You can talk to your care professional: if they don't know, they can find out more for you.
- Or contact

What is next?

If you are eligible to join the Pilot we will ask you to sign a consent form to enable us to collate and share some of personal and sensitive information.

Why?

Information about you and your health and social care needs is required to:

- help work out your capitated budget;
- to be able to look at what is happening today and then be able to compare with what you will have over the next few years.

What is the Benefit?

There will be no decision about you without you.

The outcome of the Pilot will influence the future of NHS and social care to the benefit of all.

Integrated Personal Commissioning

Is this for You?

Do you, or someone you are caring for, have complex health and social care needs?

The Integrated Personal Commissioning (IPC) Programme is for individuals who have high level support needs where a more personalised approach could make a real difference.

It is not suitable for everyone, but it may help

- to overcome problems that you may have with the current care support that you receive; or
- prevent you from becoming more unwell.
- help you maintain your independence for longer or to manage a crisis in your life that in the past has led to you being admitted to hospital or residential care.

What is Integrated Personal Commissioning?

It's about what matters to you, rather than what is the matter with you.

We are part of a Pilot in the South West to look at future planning for the NHS and social care. This will be your opportunity to contribute towards the health and social care for future generations.

Integrated Personal Commissioning has two parts, care and financial;

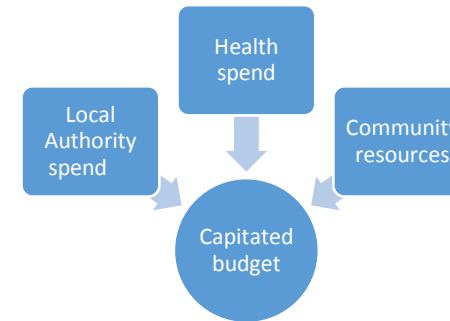

Care: At the core of any support package is your personal care plan. Your new care plan may be different from anything you have seen before as you will be at the centre:

- it will be led by you, deciding on what is important to you;
- you will be an equal partner in planning how to meet your health and social care needs;
- there will be “no decision about you without you”;
- It will focus on what is important to you and your family and include your support networks.

Financial: Integrated Personal Commissioning will identify the cost of the services you receive approximately. This information can be provided to you and could enable you to have some say in how that money is spent on you in the future?

This is called a “capitated payment model” and will include social care support, medication, district nursing, GP, outpatient visits and hospital treatment costs.

You may be able to have some of the money released to you either by a Personal Health Budget or a Social Care Budget so that you can purchase services and activities that better meet your needs.
